

Contributors

GREG BANKOFF is associate professor in the School of Asian Studies, University of Auckland, Private Bag 92019, Auckland 1020, New Zealand. He is also Visiting Professor of Disaster Management, School of Science and Environment, Coventry University. He works on environmental and social concerns, especially related to disasters, resources, and community associations. His latest publications include Cultures of Disaster: Society and Natural Hazard in the Philippines (2003) and an edited volume, together with Georg Frerks and Dorothea Hilhorst, entitled Mapping Vulnerabilities, Disasters, Development and People (2004). He is currently writing a history of forestry in the Philippines prior to 1945. <g.bankoff@auckland.ac.nz>

AUGUSTO B. GATMAYTAN is a lawyer who has specialized in assisting indigenous peoples since his admission to the bar in 1988. His continuing work with indigenous communities in Agusan del Sur province inspired an interest in anthropology, in which he took a master's degree in 2000. He also teaches in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, University of the Philippines in Mindanao, Bago Oshiro, Davao City, Philippines.

GLENN ANTHONY MAY is professor, Department of History, University of Oregon, Eugene OR 97403, USA. He has written four books about the Philippines, the most recent of which is Inventing a Hero: The Posthumous Re-Creation of Andres Bonifacio (1996).

JOHN N. SCHUMACHER, S.J., is professor emeritus of church history in the Loyola School of Theology, Ateneo de Manila University, Loyola Heights, Quezon City 1108 Philippines. He has authored several books on Philippine church history and on nineteenth-century Filipino nationalism. Among his works are The Propaganda Movement (1973), The Revolutionary Clergy (1981), and Father Jose Burgos (1999).

JAN VAN DER PLOEG, an environmental anthropologist, is the Dutch coordinator of the Cagayan Valley Program on Environment and Development (CVPED) at the Isabela State University, Cagayan, Isabela 3328 Philippines. His main interest is in the socioeconomic aspects of nature conservation and land use transition. <vanderploegjan@pacific.net.ph>

MERLIJN VAN WEERD is a biologist at the Institute of Environmental Sciences (CML), Leiden University, P.O. Box 9518, 2300 RA Leiden, The Netherlands. His main interests are in biodiversity science and in the challenges of designing and implementing workable environmental conservation programs in developing countries. <vanweerd@cml.leidenuniv.nl>

JAIME B. VENERACION is professor, Department of History, College of Social Sciences and Philosophy, University of the Philippines, Diliman, Quezon City 1101 Philippines. He has written books on the history of Philippine agriculture, the Augustinian religious sisters, and the civil service. The province of Bulacan was the subject of his dissertation, which also appeared in book form in 1986.

FERNANDO N. ZIALCITA has a doctorate in anthropology and is a professor in Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Ateneo de Manila University, Loyola Heights, Quezon City, 1108 Philippines. He is the director of the department's Cultural Heritage Studies Program. His research interests focus on the interactions between culture and political economy; and on encounters between indigenous and foreign traditions in the fields of religion, politics, and architecture. Among his publications is a paper on indigenous land tenure for a Festschrift in honor of William Henry Scott.