

Contributors

PATRIA G. ARAÑAS is assistant to the president of the Ateneo de Manila University. She received her M.A. in Reading Education from De La Salle University and is a Ph.D. candidate in Language Teaching at the University of the Philippines.

HOWARD T. FRY, a graduate of Cambridge University, joined the History Department of James Cook University of North Queensland in 1968 where he made Philippine history a major field of study. He has contributed articles on Philippine and Pacific history in a variety of scholarly journals, and in 1983 published A History of the Mountain Province (Quezon City: New Day).

JOSEPH A. GALDON, S.J., editor of this review, is professor and chairman of the English Department, Ateneo de Manila University. He obtained his Ph.D. in English and Comparative Literature from Columbia University.

PATRICIA B. LICUANAN, author of several scholarly publication in psychology, is professor of psychology and director of the Human Resources Center at the Ateneo de Manila University. She holds a Ph.D. in psychology from Pennsylvania State University.

SERAFIN D. QUIASON is director of the National Library and acting chairman of the National Historical Institute. He is a member of the advisory council of UNESCO and assistant project officer in the office of the president of the Philippines. His Ph.D. in History is from the University of Pennsylvania.

JOSEPH L. ROCHE, S.J. is professor in the Theology Department, Ateneo de Manila University and in Loyola School of Theology. He earned his doctorate at the Catholic University of Louvain, and did post doctoral studies at Fordham University. A former editor of this journal, he is presently the director of the Ateneo-LST's Formation Institute for Religious Education (FIRE).

LUCIANO P.R. SANTIAGO is a psychiatrist in private practice at the Medical City General Hospital, Mandaluyong. He has published several articles in psychiatry and on various aspects of Philippine history and culture.