

Contributors

AURORA F. BAUZON is professor in the Faculty of Medicine and Surgery of the University of Santo Tomas in Manila, while serving as chair of the Department of Medical Education. She earned her M.D. at the University of Santo Tomas and her M.S.P.H. at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

LESLIE E. BAUZON is professor of history in the College of Social Sciences and Philosophy of the University of the Philippines in Diliman. In 1994–97, he served as a visiting professor in the School of Area Studies of the University of Tsukuba in Japan. He obtained his Ph.D. in history from Duke University.

GRANT K. GOODMAN is professor emeritus in history, University of Kansas, Lawrence. He has written extensively on Japanese prewar activities and the wartime occupation of the Philippines.

E. ARSENIO MANUEL has published several biographies and bibliographies related to the Philippines. He has also done extensive studies on Manobo and folk literature. He received his Ph.D. in anthropology from the University of Chicago.

ALFRED W. MCCOY is professor at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He has published a series of essays on the Philippines' modern political history. His latest books are Closer than Brothers: Manhood at the Philippine Military Academy and Lives at the Margin: Biography of the Filipinos Obscure, Ordinary and Heroic.

DARIO NOVELLINO received his M.A. in social anthropology at the School of Asian and African Studies, University of London. He is affiliated with the Department of Anthropology, University of Kent at Canterbury. He works with U.N. organizations such as International Fund for Agricultural Development.

VICTOR S. VENIDA is an associate professor in the Economics Department, Ateneo de Manila University.